The Friends of the Culpeper County Library is thrilled to announce its fifth annual storytelling event “Culpeper Tells...a Festival of Words” on March 10, 2018. The story of Culpeper Tells continues to grow as the festival becomes a destination tourism event attracting both locals and tourists to shop, dine, and stay in Culpeper.

What is storytelling? Simply put, it’s timeless entertainment. Whether the stories are told around a fire, or the kitchen table, storytelling is a beloved tradition passed down through generations. Stories engage the imagination and bring people together. While it’s not stand-up comedy, although it’s often humorous. Culpeper Tells has included bluegrass and folk singing, but it’s not a concert. It’s not children’s story time, but all ages will enjoy most stories. Our storytelling festival features performances and workshops from a variety of professional storytellers, while also offering a story slam—a chance for amateurs to tell a tale.

In 2017, Culpeper Tells expanded to include free Friday performances for four of the county’s public elementary schools and interactive presentations for the drama departments at both high schools. This outreach was made possible through sponsorships, and with your help, we can continue this program in 2018.

Culpeper Tells 2018 will welcome back storyteller and accomplished musician Josh Goforth, as well as “the Robin Williams of Storytelling” Ed Stivender! We are excited to welcome Charlotte Blake Alston to our festival for the first time. She is a nationally acclaimed storyteller, narrator, instrumentalist, librettist, and singer who performs in venues throughout North America and abroad.

We need your help to make Culpeper Tells a success! This event wouldn’t happen without your support and commitment to our community. All proceeds from Culpeper Tells support the Culpeper County Library, providing a funding source for a diverse mixture of programs. Please support this annual event by completing the form below and returning it with your check (made out to the Friends of the Culpeper County Library) to the Culpeper County Library at 271 Southgate Shopping Center, Culpeper, VA 22701, or via PayPal at www.cclva.org.

Thank you for your continued support of the Culpeper community,
Elana Clements & Kelly Rozwadowski
2018 Committee Co-Chairs, Culpeper Tells...A Festival of Words
